What got us here?

- During the critical days of summer, off-base motorcycle accidents have effected members of Team Robins, resulting in loss of life and several serious injuries.
- Based on national statistics, motorcycle fatalities and serious injuries continue to rise.
- In the majority of these accidents, a nation-wide problem has been that automobile drivers say that they did not see the motorcyclist.

What got us here?

- In Warner Robins, the number of motorcycle accidents have climbed to a staggering 6 accidents in 6 weeks.
- In that time, there have been a fatality, three serious injuries resulting hospitalization and two other incidents.
- These motorcycle accidents have occurred off the installation, making this problem a public safety issue and not just a Robins Air Force Base problem.

A quick reminder from Safety

- Wear protective clothing, such as Kevlar reinforced jeans
- The palms of a biker's gloves should be reinforced with patches
- Boots should be thick leather, with a sole that can flex with the foot but resists crushing across the foot
- Safety helmets that comply with Federal Motor Vehicle Safety Standard No. 218 save lives

A quick reminder from Safety

- Considering crash statistics and the increasing number of motorcyclists, the key to a safer traffic mix is learning to share the road.
- Car drivers involved in collisions with motorcycles often do not notice the motorcycle before the collision

Where are we going

- With the help of the Mission Support Group, the Safety Office and the Public Affairs office, Team Robins has created the See Me, Save Me campaign.
- The Safety Office continues to promote training opportunities for motorcyclist.
- By offering awareness briefings to our community, the Public Affairs office wants to create an understanding of what this safety campaign means to members on Robins.

Team Robins reminds its members to practice good driver's etiquette.

- Share the Road
- Remember to look Twice
- And know that your car can kill
